I was hoping to see something epic. A mental battle between man and fish. Fishing (#2) is a minigame in Final Fantasy XV where the player can gather food ingredients for cooking at camp sites and prize fish that cannot be eaten. The player can catch fish of all sizes in bodies of water, using various different rods and lures. Upon catching new fish, the party can unlock new recipes. Fishing is an optional pastime, but some quests require one to fish. Mechanics[edit] | edit source] How to fish[edit] | edit source] A yellow marker denotes a fish in that spot. Icons as explained in the in-game menu. The fishing game minigame uses button prompts while reeling in a fish. The fish that appear blue on the radar are acquired as "treasures" in the item inventory; the yellow ones on the radar are "ingredients" that can be cooked at camp. Dots with an outer circle on the radar indicate the location of uncommon fish. Quitting fishing and restarting respawns the fish, so the player can keep trying for the specific fish they want. Sometimes the fish splash on the surface of the water to tip the player to an especially good spot to cast their line. Fishing requires at least one usable fishing line and lure. Both can be purchased at shops, including tackle shops located near select fishing holes. As Noctis's fishing skill increases, both the speed at which lines deteriorate and the cost of lures decrease. Noctis can acquire new fishing rods and reels, boosting his fishing offense and defense. To start fishing, the player must find a fishing spot in a body of water. They become marked on the map after being discovered, and the player can also learn about them beforehand from tipsters and from fishing magazines found lying around the world. Some fishing spots have signs that denote what kind of fish can be caught there, although these are not fully comprehensive. Fishing at different times of day and in varying weather may yield different fish. The player can't fish with Aranea in the party, or in Chapter 14. When the player begins to fish, Noctis summons a rod to his hand. Entering the menu at this point lets the player choose their fishing equipment. The player uses the action button to cast the line and the right shoulder button to reel the line. To get the fish to bite one must use a lure, and specific lures work for specific fish; if the player uses an incompatible lure, the fish will simply ignore it. When the lure is near a fish a red bar appears to the top of the screen and a sound cue will play, same as for initiating a battle on the field. The fish pulling on the line wears it down, and if it snaps and the fish gets away, the player will lose their lure (there is one special lure obtained from a side quest that cannot be lost, however). The line wear is depicted as a numerical value, and the player should replace their line from the equipment menu when it wears thin. Fish jumping. The player must follow the button prompts that appear on-screen to reel in the fish. The player should not reel when there is no tension on the line that makes the gauge go red, and when there is tension to push the analog stick to the direction the screen prompts to relieve it. At times fish jump out of the water with a button prompt to follow, which lets Noctis reel his catch a little closer. There is a record of what kinds of fish have been caught. It is possible to catch fish up to one meter in length. Tips[edit] | edit source] A good strategy is to not look at the strength of the line or the progress gauge at the top, as once a fish has been hooked the player is committed to catching it. Instead, the player can watch the fish to anticipate its movement, and move the rod the same way the fish is moving. If a fish is far away, the player can use its wake to determine movement. The camera always moves in the same direction as the fish and can thus also be easier to observe. It can be a good idea to not reel when the fish is changing direction rapidly, and only reel when it is moving consistently in one direction. When the water splashes and the controller is vibrating, the fish is struggling. Reeling is much more effective when the fish doesn't struggle, and for the big fish it is advised to not reel when they struggle as it creates tension on the line. Tapping the reel button once, rather than holding, when the fish struggles, doesn't deplete from the line strength, but can slightly advance the progress bar at the top. For catching the big fish, repeatedly tapping the reel button rather than holding tends to work better to avoid wearing down the line. For the superfish like the Mummy Bass in the Windows and Royal Editions that destroy the line fast, one may tap the pause button and adjust the reel/do not reel and direction as needed while paused, although it takes a long time to reel in a big fish this way. The Booster Pack +, which is included in the season pass, contains the second most powerful fishing rod and reel, making it easier to fish and level up Noctis's fishing skills. This can enable the player to get fishes that yield tremendous status boosts early in the game to gain a huge advantage and level up efficiently as well as leveling Ignis's cooking skills from cooking complex dishes. Skill level[edit] | edit source] Noctis's fishing abilities. The player can level up Noctis's fishing skill via fishing; the fishing experience is added when resting at camp or at lodgings, the same as for EXP. The bonus at each level up will improve the player's chances of catching bigger fish, which in turn improves the chances of getting big AP bonuses from fishing once unlocked in the Ascension. Fishing level carries over when using chapter select. Level 1 - Amateur Angler: No Bonus Level 2 - Long-lasting Line: Fishing line wears down 25% slower when fish struggle Level 3 - Tackle Discount I: Tackle shops offer a 10% discount Level 4 - Lure Allure I: Chances of hooking a fish increased by 25% Level 5 - Able Angler: Catch fish up 31.5 inches Level 6 - Tackle Discount II: Tackle shops offer a 30% discount Level 7 - Longer-lasting Line: Fishing line wears down 50% slower when fish struggle Level 8 - Lure Allure II: Chances of hooking a fish increased by 50% Level 9 - Tackle Discount III: Tackle shops offer a 50% discount Level 10 - Ace Angler: Catch fish up to 59 inches improving fishing level for the first time earns the Angling Rookie achievement/trophy. Maxing it out earns Angling Expert. Ascension Grid[edit] | edit source] The Exploration grid provides boosts for the fishing minigame. Name Effect Angler Action Gain 1 AP from catching a fish. Item Angler Double items gained from fishing. Expert Item Angler Triple items gained from fishing. Reel Experience Gain EXP for catching fish (each species has its own value). Sportfishing Gain extra AP for catching big fish (each species has its own value). Victory scenes[edit] | edit source] Noctis catches a small fish. Upon making the landing, there are four different victory scenes depending on the fish caught: For a small catch, Noctis reels in the fish and hoists it up. The team expresses disappointment for such a small or unappealing catch. For a general catch, Noctis reels in the fish and hoists it up. The team compliments Noctis's catch. For a large catch, Noctis reels in the fish, but kneels over, puts his rod aside and uses both hands to hoist up the catch. The team comes over, and celebrates Noctis's catch. For exceptionally huge catches, Noctis looks over in excitement, and summons Gladiolus to handle the catch, who dives on into the waters to subdue the fish. For the Murk Groupier, the same will happen with the addition of the rest of the team huddles over, Ignis looks over the dock, before Prompto prompts pushes him in to follow through and Noctis playfully kicks Prompto into the water. As the team stands in the shallows, they all hoist up the fish. Prompto pulls out his camera, and the group poses with the catch in celebration for a photo. This will go down in the player's photo gallery for the day. For the Bluefin Tuna in the Royal and Windows Editions, Gladiolus jumps into the water. Ignis and Prompto look at each other and nod. Ignis puts his glasses away and the two jump in after him. The next scene shows the fish on the vessel's deck with everyone admiring the catch. List of fish[edit] | edit source] Main article: Final Fantasy XV fish There are over 100 different fish, some fish having small and large variants. Size variations do not alter the appearance of the fish, but do change the values for stamina, power, SP, EXP and AP. Their prices are not lowered by Noctis's fishing level. Leisure Goods are also sold on the Regalia's shop and more inventory becomes available as the player encounters them in other shops, Mini-Mart - Coernix Station (Alstor) Mini-Mart - Coernix Station (Cauthess) Mini-Mart - Coernix Station Lestallium Mini-Mart - Burbost Souvenir Emporium JM Market - Cape Caem JM Market - Altissia Fishing quests[edit] | edit source] [edit] | edit source] Navyth. Main article: Navyth's quest Navyth's becomes Navyth Arlund is a fisherman who travels around the Leide, Duscae and Cleigne region, who tasks Noctis with catching particular fish. The fish he requests for can be caught from the fishing spot at which the quest is given, but the player can also catch the fish elsewhere. If the player has already caught the requested fish, it can be presented to Navyth to complete the quest immediately after accepting it. Liege of the Lake[edit] | edit source] Main article: Liege of the Lake quest If the player camps near Vesperpool with a full party, Gladiolus will want to go fishing for the legendary Liege of the Lake. The tour is completed once the player catches the Liege; quitting fishing puts them back at camp, but the tour can be restarted at any time by camping at the same haven again. It is possible to catch the Liege outside of the tour when fishing at the same spot. The "Liege of the Lake" is one of the toughest fish to catch. It is not marked on the radar until Fishing Level 10 and lurks in the top left corner of the fishing area. It can be caught with the Giant Needle 10,000: Gold Gigantuar lure that can be bought at the shop at the same fishing spot. It is advised to use the best fishing line, an upgraded rod and reel, and to have Fishing Level 7 or above. Cooking Kupoberry Cheesecake at camp before the tour that makes a fishing line last 25% longer helps in this quest. The player only needs to catch the lure until the liege bites; any other fish that bite the player can let the fish come off the line to have a fresh line when catching the liege. Catching the fish yields the Big Blaze Bahamut lure, which is special as it will return even if the line snaps. NameLocationUnlockRewardLiege of the LakeCleigneCamp in Captius Haven20 AP Royal vessel fishing[edit] | edit source] Noctis fishing on the royal vessel. Main article: Fishing quests on the royal vessel In the original release, the trip to Altissia is an in-game cutscene. The PC and Royal Edition versions make the boat usable by the player with the same controls as the Regalia. The player can explore the oceans freely and fish from the vessel. Fishing spots are denoted on a radar and can keep changing. When sailing, fishing-related quests become available when the player approaches the correct spot. Most fishing spots don't have any special fish, but two new fish become available in the new quests added to the Royal versions. Monster of the Deep: Final Fantasy XV[edit] | edit source] Main article: Monster of the Deep: Final Fantasy XV On June 12, 2017, Monster of the Deep: Final Fantasy XV was announced as a PlayStation VR exclusive. It provides an enhanced version of the fishing minigame in virtual reality. It was released in September 2017.[1] Behind the scenes[edit] | edit source] Noctis's love for fishing was developed after his appearance in Final Fantasy XV Episode Duscae demo, when the developers were still amid an effort to humanize and flesh out the party.[2] Gallery[edit] | edit source] References[edit] | edit source]
